

Xylotropes gideon

Brown rhinoceros beetle

Rating: Not Rated Yet

Price

Sales price £41.99

Ask a question about this product

Manufacturer Rhinobeetle UK

Description

General

The brown rhinoceros beetle or fighting beetle, Xylotropes gideon, is a species of large scarab beetle belonging to the subfamily Dynastinae. It is particularly known for its role in insect fighting in Thailand.

Size

Xylotropes gideon can reach a length of 3.5–7 centimetres (1.4–2.8 in). As usual with horn beetles there is a great difference between the genders. Males are larger than females.

Description

They have two chitinous bifurcated horns, a thick thoracic horn and a smaller cephalic horn, which they use to eliminate their rivals during the mating period. These beetles are shiny dark red, dark brown, or black in coloration. The eyes are located on each side of the head. When disturbed these beetles make a hissing noise, produced by rubbing the tip of the abdomen against the edge the elytra.

Distribution

This species can be found across much of Southeast Asia, south to Australia and east to the Solomon Islands.

-

Life cycle

The larvae develop in decaying vegetable matter and take usually two years in development, the adult beetles live 2–4 months. A female can lay about 50 eggs

Reviews

There are yet no reviews for this product.

